PROFESSOR GOLDSMITH .- We had the pleasure, esterday evening, of listening to a lecture from his distinguished professor to his class in the Kencucky School of Medicine. We saw that he is eminently entitled to the very high reputation he has established. We have never listened to a clearer, a stronger, a more emphatic, or a more impressive lecturer. He commands the deepest attention of all within the sound of his voice, and the important truths that he utters sink deep into the minds of his hearers. He shows himself a complete master of his subject, and his manner of imparting his knowledge is as pleasant as the knowledge itself is impor-

Skilled as Dr. Goldsmith is in theory, he is not less skilled in practice. The son of one of the most successful and distinguished practitioners in the nation, he has, through a long series of years at the East, rivaled the reputation of his eminent father in both medical and snrgical practice. He is destined to make a broad, deep mark not only in Louisville but throughout Kentucky and the whole West.

We were induced to go to Dr. Goldsmith's lecture yesterday by the very warm eulogiums we heard bestowed on him in Philadelphia a few days ago by

LAST SESSION OF THE OLD COUNCIL. - The municipal Legislature which has been in office during the past year held its final session last evening. There was a full attendance in both Boards, But little business of importance, however, was transac-

In the Common Council a resolution was passed recommending the establishment of another ferry between this city and Jeffersonville.

Also, for the erection of a station house in Portland, and the repair of certain embrasures made on the shore near that place.

A complimentary resolution was passed tendering the thanks of the Board to Mr. D. T. Monserrat for the fidelity, ability, and impartiality with which he ad acted as President during the past year. Mr M. responded in a most felicitons manner, and retired from the chair he had so well filled.

The Mayor will call the new Council together on Thursday or Friday evening.

Gen. Pilcher will be inaugurated on the fourth Monday of this month.

FAMINE AND BLOODSHED IN NEBRASKA. - The Missonri Democrat of Saturday learns from the steamer St. Mary, just from Council Bluffs, and the first arrival this season from that point, that the people of the various towns on the river above St. Joseph were destitute of many of the luxuries, and even the necessaries, of civilized life, and eager crowds hastened on board at every landing, for the purpose of purchasing portions of her cargo that might be for sale. Several persons who went np with her had provided themselves for such demands and realized large profits on their ventures. The Democrat learns further, that four men were shot at Plattsmouth, N. T., on Saturday evening, March 19th, by the orders, or hands, of a vigilance committee, and that five others were banished by the same party, from Nebraska, across the river, and forbidden to return to the territory under pain of death, if caught. Their offense was claim-jnmping. The officers of the St. Mary also bring intelligence that, in a private quarrel, on the 30th of March, in the town of Atchison, K. T., one man was shot.

A flash of lightning, in the shape of a telegraphic dispatch, struck a young man from Covingon, vesterday, and he was lodged in the city jail. He had been stealing various articles of clothing in

A painful rumor in reference to a shooting afdray was current through our streets last night Upon investigation we were pleased to find that it was entirely incorrect.

Cucumbers and green peas were abundant at nnah, last week.

We have the pleasure of favoring the lovers of true poetry with another of the remarkable productions of the glorious young poetess they so much and so justly admire:

[For the Louisville Bulletin.] WEDINGHOOD.

At our fect shall blush—I said— All the summers, white and red, When my love and I are wed!

We will feast right royally-Souls late touched to melody Sealed with God's white entity. We will drink immortal wine-

And the life shall be divine, That shall hold his love and mine.

And when we are truly wed—
"That shall be when ye are dead,
Only then!"—a whisper said.

Long ago we two have died To the world—and deified Stands our troth 'fore God!—I cried, Self-sufficient, conquering death-With a mighty inward falth

We are given to understand Truth's ideal—and the brand Of God's hand doth touch our hand.

In the royal bouse of life— Softly barred from every strife-Wedded lord and noble wife-

Reinstated, through our vows, We will wlud about our brows The full calm of olive-boughs. Let the wind blow low or high-

Let the bitter voices cry— And the dreary world go by. Ever, evermore shall fall In the garden and the hall

Love's divinest madrigal! And our blies shall swifter run When the mystery bere begun Out of heaven a soul hath won

But if, in the years to be-Rounding westward ellently-

From our palace-doors we see, 'Twixt us and the light of day, A small billock, white with May, We shall only softly say-

We are patient, being blest, For we know that it is best When the children enter rest;

And the little life that fell-Vibrant, like a lily-bell Swinging 'tweeu the breezes well-In God's garden shines to-day

Whiter than the croft of May That doth make our meadows gay! So our mortal lives shall run

Like a river in the sun Singing—till our work is done; Then our little lily-bell We shall gather, knowing well

It, from any asphodel.

[For the Louisville Bulletin.] TO THE HANDSOME, GIFTED, AND FASCINA-TING COL. BEN SELBY.

"If aught on earth could charm or force My splrit from its destined course If aught could make my soul forget The bond to which its real is set, 'Twould be those eyes!'

Tis night again, a night of love; Sweet stars smile in the blue above And misty veils of moonlight fall Around the sleeping trees-ay, all (Save that no roses dream and dream) Is so like then; as if to seem
That night by magic called again, To bld a mourner sigh ln vain

Thy sweet voice and enchanting air-And, oh, thine eyes—a heaven was there? A heaven of darkness like the night, And yet a heaven of starry light! Oh how my spirit worshipped theee Fire bands of mourning memories, When night's lone starry sadness came

I may not breathe reproaches now; The hauntleg of no murdered vow Is round thee in the midnight sloom To make thine own a darkened doom Yet, by the softness of thy smile, I dreamed thy love was mine-erewhile And now? Oh, what a dim aby Divides my heart from thee-and bliss!

Whene'er I hear a soft, sweet tone It seems the spirit of thine own-And when I see a clear, dark eye I sigh for light that's long gone by.

And thon—say dost thou muse no more
On—one who shared thy thoughts of yore, One whose lone life will henceforth be A sweet but mournful dream of thee?

Once I'd bave given the blue above With all its stars to win thy love! But now—I seem to see thee changed— Thy beart, alas! must be estranged; Thy beauty—ay, 'tis drifting slow O'er the dark seas of long ago; Yet as I gaze on thee to-night I see enough-too much of light, Ob, when the flowers are here again I'll send thee one, though all in vain, Whose emblem thou didst know too well Erefrom thy lips I beard farewelli Twill tell what I remember yet-Canet thou forget? Canet thon forget? Away wild thoughts that haunt my beart— He's lost to me—why did we part?

INDIAN MURDERS IN IOWA.—By the letter below our readers will learn that a terrible murder of white settlers has taken place in the northwestern part of Iowa. Twenty bodies of the slain had already been counted. The letter is as follows:

FORT DODGE, Ia., March 23. DEAR SIR: This town is in a perfect blaze of excitement. For two months past, reports of depredations by the Indians have been received here, but cocasioned no alarm. Yesterday, however, some residents from the vicinity of Spirit Lake, in Dickenson county, arrived here, bringing the intelligence that some forty persons were missing, and that the bodies of fourteen had been found lifeless and mutilated.

Three companies of volunteers, raised in Webster City and this place, will start to-morrow morning to hunt the murderers. The Sioux, Chippewas, and Winnebagoes deny any connection with these dreadful acts; and Major W. Williams, Indian agent at this point, says that the villains are criminals who have been banished the several tribes.

Among the families known to be killed are those of Mr. Howe (consisting of seven persons), Mr. Gardiner's, Mr. Lucas's, and Mr. Mattocks's. But fourteen bodies had been found when the messengers left, the residents being fearful to search for their neighbors.

PLUNDERING A STEAMSHIP. - Panama paper. contain some particulars respecting the robbery of the R. M. steamship, New Grenada, by the Peruvian war vessels. The New Grenada was on her passage from Callao to Panama:

While stopping at Huanchaco she was boarded by the revolutionary Peruvian vessels of war, Loa and Tumbs, and the sum of $32,000, together with some cases of accourtements, were taken forcibly from her by the Vivanco party. The arms and money were on their way from Callao to President Castilla's forces in Palta.

The Indianapolis Journal says:

A pupil at the Blind Asylum on Friday attempted to kill himself with his razor, but his hand was arrested before he had done any injury. On being questioned as to his motive, he replied that the institution was going to be closed, they would all be sent home, and, as he had neither home nor friends, he would rather die than be sent to the poor-house.

TRIAL OF THE REV. MR. KALLOCH.

Bostos, Thursday, April 2, 1857.
Third Day.—The trial of Mr. Kalloch was resumed at Cambridge this morning. The defendant occupied a seat near his counsel. He exhibited a confident mien, and shook hands with many of his conndent inien, and shook hands with many of his friends.

A plan of the room occupied by Mr. Kalloch and his female companion at the Lechmere House was exhibited to the jury. Three witnesses were then examined for the prosecution, but their testimony was merely relative to the defendant's presence at the hotel and in the lecture room, and threw no new light upon the criminal charge. The prosecuting attorney then inquired of defendant's counsel if they intended to hold him to prove that on the 5th of Jannary last Mr. Kalloch was a married man, having a lawful wife other than the woman in his company at the Cragie House.

Mr. Dana, for the defendant, conceded the fact, remarking, "Mr. Kalloch requests me to say that he is proud to say that he is a married man, and that there is a Mrs. Kalloch; also that she would be here after these foul and false details are done with, which are unfitting for a lady to hear, and will be which are unfitting for a lady to hear, and will be found sitting alongside her husband." The fact that the woman with Mr. Kalloch on the inght in question was not his wife was also admit-ted. With the admission of these two facts the prosecution rested the case. About sixty witnesses were then sworn for the defense, mostly in regard to character. The driver of the carriage which con-veyed the defendant and woman to the hotel was weyed the defendant and woman to the notel was examined as to time, etc.

Mrs. Harriet Hasty, a visitor at defendant's honse, testified that a woman, whom she did not know, arrived at the house on the afternoon of the 5th of Jannary. Defendant was absent at the time, but came in shortly after the woman did. She left in a arriage with defendant to attend the lecture. Un-carriage with defendant to attend the lecture. Understood her name to be Steen.

Deacon Merrill, of the Old Cambridge Baptist Church, detailed the statements made by Mr. Bailey, landlord of the hotel, at an interview he had with him on the alleged criminality of Mr. Kalloch. The witness acted as an agent of the Trustees of the Tremont Temple. The interview was to elicit facts.
Mr. Bailey required much urging to speak at all or the matter, and the statements be made to witness did not so fully implicate Mr. Kalloch as the testi-mony he (Bailey) gave on the stand.

The Court adjourned without finishing with Deaon Merrill Mrs. Kalloch, a very handsome and ladylike per son, was in the court-room a part of the aftern and occupied a seat near her husband. MEMORANDA. -Steamer Fashlon left St. Louis on Thurs

Honey Locust for Posts .- A correspondent in Chattanooga wishes to know if honey locust will anwer for posts. It is not at all suitable for this purse, being less durable in the ground than common red beech. When straight-grained, it is sometimes made into rails, but even to this purpose it is not well-adapted, being heavy and not very durable.

An EBROR—CORN PLANTING.—It is a mistake that some agricultural journals are making to recommend early planning indiscriminately, and without noting the exceptions.

The farmer of course will think for himself—will use his agricultural paper to suggest thoughts and plans for his own acceptance or rejection, and not as an oracle by which he is to be led captive at another's will.

Hence, wrong advice is not in all constitutions.

other's will.

Hence, wrong advice is not in all cases very harmful. We verily believe that the worst agricultural paper that could be concocted would do some good—would be worth more, in the absence of better journals, than its cost—because it would lead to thought—would sharpen the farmer's powers of observation and reflection.

Still wrong advice way prove interiors to the case of the control of the control of the case of the case servation and reflection.

Still wrong advice may prove injurious to some. The young, inexperienced farmer might be minded. Take, as an instance, the indiscriminate recommendation to plant early. It is good advice, so far as it is sound. The oats will be heavier if the seed is sown about as soon as Jack Frost lets go his hold of the ground; potatoes, taking a succession of years, oftener do well with early than late planting; winter wheat is on the whole more likely to escape its enemies and mature heavily with early than with late sowing. It is so with crops generally; and then the caterprising farmer loves to see his work done in good time—would rather drive his work than be driven by it.

good time—would rather drive his work than be driven by it.

But how is it with Indian corn? Does the earliest planting always give the best crop? No. Planting at the right time gives the best result. And when is the right time? It is important to know, for, when that time comes, not a moment is to be lost. Corn is a tropical plant; it loves a great deal of heat and but a moderate degree of moisture; it will flourish only in tropical countries, or those which have the summer of tropical climates. Under favorable circumstances, it grows rapidly. Three months will carry it from germination beyond the danger of injury by frost, provided the weather be warm and not over wet. Without these favoring circumstances, it "gets contrary," so to speak, and won't grow. These are essential to its tropical nature. There is hardly a more important problem for the corn grower than to hit upon the time for planting, when the seed will come in three or four days, and then grow "right on" without stopping.

Wheat, rye, oats, almost anything else, will wait without injury to the final re-Wheat, rye, oats, almost anything else, will wait for growing weather, without injury to the final result. Not so with corn. The farmer must give it the three hottest months in our climate, so nearly as his judgement will enable him.

The true advice with regard to this crop is, not to plant early; but as soon as the ground is warm and there is a reasonable hope of its continuing so, not to lose a moment.—Plow Loom, and Anvil.

WAY TO EXCHANGE POTATOES..—Messrs. Editors: Some time in April last, I wrote an article for the Cultivator on "Early Potatoes." Soon after it appeared, I received a letter from Gurdon Evans, Esq., of Oswego, N. Y., containing a thin paring from the seed or spront end of the potato, which he called "Jnne Russett," with a request that I would send him in the same way a like piece of an "Early Carter," which I did.

Owing to the miscarriage of the latter, it being directed Huntington, N. H., the piece of potato, when I received it, was very much dried and shriveled, and resembled a piece of bacon rind, much more than it did a piece of potato. But I planted it, and received as a product eight good sized potatoes—the four largest weighing over one and a half toes-the four largest weighing over one and a half Owing to the lateness of planting, or rather the Owing to the lateness of planting, or rather the slow process of its spronting and growth, I have no means of deciding how early the variety is; but the yield I consider very remarkable, considering the doubtful appearance of the seed. I have cooked one of the potatoes, and find it middling as to quality. I shall plant the remainder this spring. I make this statement more particularly, to show with what ease we can send or receive the seed of any new or valuable variety of potato, even where quite a distance intervenes.—Boston Cultivator.

SEED CORN FROM SMALL END OF EAR.—G. W. Coffin, of Duchess county, New York, after six years' careful experiment, has been compelled, against all former notions, to believe that corn for seed is best when taken from the small end of the ear. He says that with like treatment it has our-yielded that from other portions of the ear in every instance where care was taken to select those that were well rounded over at the little end, the increase reaching as high in some instances as 22 bushels of DOEHARTY'S GEOMETRY. By Gerardus Beekman Doeharty, L. L. D. New York: Harper & Brothers. The author is a mathematician of considerable note, and has been for many years engag ed in teaching mathematics in the Free Academy of New York. He has presented in this compilation such propositions in Geometry and Trigonometry as his experience has shown to be most useful to students of Mathematics. His book contains selections from the most approved text books with several important additions. For sale by Morton & Griswold.

KING RICHARD THE FIRST. By Jacob Abbott. New York: Harper & Brothers.

This is one of Abbott's histories. In this serie the author gives, in a familiar style, historic narra tives of the principal events of the periods which are comprised in each volume. They are epitomes of history, stripped of dry detail and made attractive by presenting in connected detail the salient points of authentic history. For sale by Morton & Griswold.

THE VARIETIES.

A Frenchman has invented a post-office automaten which takes up every letter as it is thrown into the box, places it under the stamp where it re ceives the postmark and date, and throws it out again for delivery to its destination. By this machine two hundred letters may be stamped in a min-

An iron comb about four inches long, with the letters G. Washington forming the top, has been picked up in Chester county. The West Chester Republican says: "Very likely this comb belonged to the age when Washington and his army were at Valley Forge. It may have been his own or it may be of the kind furnished to the soldiers. It was found along a road where Washington was frequently seen to ride when at Valley Forge."

The Huntsville (Texas) Recorder states that near Waverly a few days ago a panther attacked a widow lady in her own house. She succeeded in throwing him ont and barring the door. Her screams finally brought assistance. The bloodthirsty monster was at last dispatched, but not till he had seriously wounded five persons in his insane attempt to satisfy the eravings of hunger.

An eloquent Irish priest in attempting to persuade his flock to avoid the ball room on St Patrick's day in the evening, closed his appeal with this perfectly conclusive, and, to an Irishman, knock down and drag out argument. "The Irishman that goes to the ball is no better than a Dutchman!" No anathema could add to the force of that.

"Wonderful things are done now-a-days," said Mr. Timmins; "the doctor has given Flack's boy a new lip from his cheek." "Ah," said his lady, "many's the time I have known a pair taken from mine, and no very painful operation either."

Queer Postal Arrangements .- The Madison (Wis.) Journal is informed of a rather singular post-office arrangement on the Wisconsin river. He observed the captain land with a mail bag, the contents of which he emptied on one side of a large dry gods box, partly buried in the bank. He then took from the opposite side of the box whatever mail matter was therein contained, and returned to the boat.
There was no human habitation within five or six miles of this novel post-office, the locality of which was marked by a small white flag flying from a neighboring tree. Neither was there any postmaster or other official to take care of it; but the captain, on his reaching the proper office, was expected to mail the letters therein found, and inquire for any belonging to his region.

OUR RELATIONS WITH CHINA. - The confident tone of the annexed letter of Ion, the facilities possessed by the writer, together with his usually cautious character, authorize us to assign to his important statements an official inspiration. As to the policy adopted or proposed by our Government in relation to the present complications of Chinese afrelation to the present complications of Chinese af-fairs, our knowledge of the nature and condition of those affairs, and of the eventual objects contemplated by other powers, is too imperfect to justify us in expressing any distinct opinion on the subject. There is only one point on which we would venture now to speak with any decision touching our relations with China, and that is as to the residence of a Representative near its Government. Hitherto the policy of the Chinese has not permitted a for-eign minister to reside at the capital, and Mr. Cush-ing, when some years ago our commissioner to China, could not, with all his efforts, obtain even permission to visit it. Now, it is understood, the privilege has been accorded to one of the great powers of Europe to have a resident minister at Pekin, and, if that be the case, it strikes us that, if our Govern-ment thinks proper to be represented by a diplomatic agent at all, we should insist ou his being accredited to the Supreme Government at the capital:

"Washington, April 1.

"For the last two or three days considerable at-tention has been given by the President and Secreta-ry of State to our relations with China. Though we have avoided any cooperation with the British in their hostile demonstrations against China, yet we have been forced into collision with the Chinese auhave been forced into collision with the Chinese authorities in consequence of the insults offered by the commanding officer of a Chinese fort to our flag. The insult was resented by our naval force in a very gallant manner, and the forts were destroyed. This was, by the way, the first occasion on which the new shot and shell practice for our navy, and belonging solely to our service, were ever tried in action, and their efficiency was most satisfactorily tested; for they smashed everything that was in their way.

"This difficulty was settled, for the time at least.

'This diffienlty was settled, for the time at least, by a most satisfactory and ample apology in writing from the Governor of Canton, who disavowed the hostile act of the Captain of the fort. It is said hat our force, having prepared for action, did not wait the full time that had been given to the Chinese Governor for an apology, but anticipated the hour by well aimed broadsides against the fort. As the matter stands we have no special cause of quarrel with John Chinaman, and have no reason to unite with the British and French Governments in action. with the British and French Governments in a cru-sade against the Celestials. Besides, it is contrary to our general policy to entangle ourselves with for-eign collisions, whether offensive or defensive. "The British would be of course very glad of our co-operation in the war which they have commenced, and have been those thread upon this Government."

and have heretofore urged upon this Government and our Minister in Chiua the expediency of a joint effort of the American, French, and British commanders to force their way to Pekin, the capital, and there insist upon the establishment in that city of direct diplomatic intercourse with the Emperor of direct diplomatic interconrse with the Emperor of China, instead of negotiating through the Governor-General of Canton.

"This policy was repudiated by the late administration, and, as I learn, finds still less favor with the present. The imprudent and nnauthorized act of our consul at Hong-Kong in participating in the British assault on Canton, and entering the city with the British troops and bearing in his own hands the American flag, was rebuked by Mr. Marcy, and is equally censured by the present administration. If the fact prove to be so, the consul will be dismissed. The act of the consul was well calculated to provoke hostilities, and it is needless to say that no consul or other officer has a right to commit his Government before the world on so important a subject."

A MAN IN THE RAPIDS OF NIAGARA!—HIS RES-CUE. On Monday morning of last week a man named E. C. Taylor, a resident of West Winfield, Herkimer county, descended the bank of the Niagare river, near the great Suspension Bridge, probably for the purpose of viewing the bridge from be-On reaching the bottom he slipped, and fell into the water, just above the bridge, and when discovered was thirty or forty rods below the bridge, near the shore, rolling over and over, borne along by the resistless current, until he caught hold of a large rock, and after some fruitless struggles succeeded in reaching the top. The alarm was immedistely given in the neighborhood, and it was soon decided there was no way of reaching him but by means of a rope ladder. This was immediately procured, and the man was in due time rescued, after having climbed up the rope ladder, which was three hundred feet long. The excited multitude bore him on their shoulders when he reached the top. We glean these particulars from a letter published iu the Rochester Democrat of Wednesday morning.

FREE NEGROES IN SAVANNAH .- Among other incentives to funatical hate recently applied by Rev. Mr. Checver to his congregation in New York was a charge that free uegroes are sold almost daily in Savannah, in payment of a tax levied upon their persons by the State. This statement is thus met by the Savannah Republican:

In Georgia free negroes are subject by law to a certain tax, which nine-tenths of them, probably, pay without a mnrmur. There are certain lazy characters, however, who fail to pay their tax, and have no property out of which it can be made by the collector. To meet these latter cases, the law provides that the delinquent shall be sold into temperary asyminds uptil be shall have earned sufficiently and the sold into temperary asyminds uptil be shall have earned sufficiently as the state of the sold into temperary asyminds uptil be shall have earned sufficiently as the state of the sold into temperary asyminds uptil be shall have earned sufficiently as the state of the sold into temperary asyminds uptil be shall have earned sufficiently as the state of the sold into temperary asyminds uptil be shall have earned sufficiently as the state of the sold into temperary asyminds uptil be shall have earned sufficiently as the state of the sold into temperary asyminds uptil the sold into temperary asyminates and the sold into temperary orary servitude until he shall have earned a suffiporary servicue until ne shall have earned a sum-cient amount to pay the just demands of the State. In other words, he is simply hired for the use of the State until he works out the debt, which done, he is remanded to his former condition. This is all just and right and attended with neither hardship nor and right and attended with neither hardship nor cruelty to the negro. Though free negroes are frequently advertised, it is a rare occurrence for the sale to take place; the party, in almost every instance, when brought to the pinch, raises the money and redeems himself from the officers of the law.

The statement that four or five sales of free negroes have already taken place for their taxes of 1856 is entirely false.

1856 is entirely false.

At five o'clock the body lay stretched on the third floor of a dilapidated rookery in Mission-place, Five Points. It was placed upon a rough pine board, near the only window of a room begrimmed with smoke and almost devoid of furniture. Everything around bespoke poverty, most squalid even for the Five Points.

About the corpse stood some two dozen ragged and rum-bloated women, and two or three miserable looking men. One of the women, whose "ery" was loudest and most prolonged, held in her arms an infant. She seemed considerably under the influence of liquor, and, when asked what relation she bore to the deceased, she turned suddenly round, and, placing the infant astride the corpse, answered, "I am

THE NASHVILLE RAILROAD. - The Gallatin (Tenn.) Examiner has the following concerning the progress of this great enterprise:

Slowly but steadily the work upon this road has been progressing for the year past, and with an energy, limited indeed, but much more productive in its results than is generally known to our citizens. A trip along the line would do more to dissipate the ignorance of those, who have not seen, than any statements we could make in figures. But for the pent of those who cannot see for themselves, we benefit of those, who cannot see for themselves, we will state: Between Gallatin and Sanndersville, two-thirds the graduation are now completed. Between Gallatin and Mansoco's Creek three-fifths the tween Gallatin and Manscoe's Creek three-fifths the grading and bridge and culvert masonry are done; and, by the first day of May next, more than half the entire work between our town and Nashville will have been finished. And this contemplates only the very small forces now occupied on the road. So even at this rate of progress, the period of railway communication between Gallatin and the State Capitol is not so very remote—in spite of what may be denominated the "almost stationary policy" of those who have this important work in charge—a policy, which, though it has the sanction of a time-honored adage, may, if persisted in, prove disastrous to the interests of the company.

MARRIED, On the 5th last, by the Rev. William Holman, Mr. William Henthoun to Mrs. Susan J. Tyler, both of this city.

BY TELEGRAPH.

Reported for the Evening Bulletin.

NEW ORLEANS, April 6.

The entire American city ticket for district judges has been elected, although it is probable that the Democratic candidate for associate judge of the Supreme Court has been elected. CINCINNATI, April 7.

At the 'city election, yesterday, N. W. Thomas, citizen's candidate for mayor, and Bellamy Storer, cisizen's candidate for judge of superior court, were elected over C. J. W. Smith and E. J. Ferguson, Democrats. The preci e majorities are not ascertained. Other offices undecided.

HARTFORD, April 7. Further returns of the election held yesterday show a Republican majority in the Senate and House. The whole Republican State ticket is probably elected. In the first and third Congressional Districts Ezra Clark, Jr., and Sidney Dean, Republicans, are both elected; in the second District Samuel Arnold, Democrat, is elected; fourth District, still doubtful.

DETROIT, April 6. This city gives 200 Democratic majority f'r judges of the Supreme Court, with two wards to hear from. The returns from the interior of the State are scattering and show a small vote polled. Weather cold and boisterous, with snow

St. Louis, April 7. Incomplete returns from the city election yesterday foot up Wimer (Emancipationist) 4,331, Pratt (Dem.) 3,080, Lane 1,626. A large number of Americans voted for Wimer. A majority of the Emancipation ticket is probably elected. Wimer's majority is about 1,500.

SANDUSKY CITY, April 7. The Republicans elected their mayor and a mojority of the city officers.

The election for jndge of the superior court is close. Two Republicans are running, and it is supposed that Mr. Matthews is elected. Lorenzo English, Republican, is re-elected mayor of this city.

CLEVELAND, April 7. Municipal election which took place yesterday in this city went in favor of the Democratic candidates by 200 majority.

Washington, April 7. Capt. II. A. Adams has been ordered to take the place of Capt. Stringham in the present naval board of inquiry. One of the new courts ordered to be instituted will neet in this city on Monday next. The board consists of Capts. W. W. McKean, John Pope, and G. J. Van Brunt, with Capt. Charles Abert, of Washington, as judge advocate. The members of the third board will be selected in a day or two.

EVENING BULLETIN.

CARROTS .- Next in value to Sugar Beet is the Cirrot as a succulent winter food for milch cows. We place it second to the sugar beet because it is rather more difficult to keep free from weeds in the early stage of its growth, and also because a little more laborious to harvest. But for these facts, we should consider it much the most valuable of the two; and, as it has the advantage of exactly suiting the taste of the horse, we should grow it for horses if we kept no cows. Horses require some succulent food in early spring. If they have been kept on dry food all winter, they frequently suffer much from costiveness and a general lassitude, appearing dull and feverish, sometimes for many weeks, in the first warm weather of spring, before the grass puts up. Most farmers are aware that a few hours' run on fresh grass will in a few days remove these symptoms. They should also know that carrots, fed two or three times a week at this season, will entirely prevent them.

If carrots were more frequently grown, their value would be better appreciated for their medicinal properties on horses. City horses, if they could be afforded this luxury, would come into service in the spring with much better health and sleeker coats. As food for milch cows, their value is well known. We hope to see them grown more generally for this

There are several kinds of carrots, some highly recommended for the table, and others for stock For the table, the best kind we have ever seen were grown from seed distributed by the Patent Office last year. It is a French carrot of a rich orange color, and of a long oval shape. They are very heavy, and, as they do not run off into a long taproot, we should think them valuable as a field crop, as they are much less labor to harvesathan the longrooted kinds. We do not remember what name they bore, but have seen the same kind described in Downing's Horticulturist many years ago. We hope any one who may have received this kind will save some for seed. From a small experiment made last year, we think it likely this variety would produce well if sowed broadcast on clean, well-prepared land.

The soil for carrots, as indeed all root crops. should be rich and deep. It should be got into the finest possible condition by repeated plowing, harrowing, and dragging or rolling. The seed should be planted in drills 21/4 to 3 feet apart, and, as soon as the plants are large enough to mark the rows, they should be ridged back with hoes. They will probably require a second hand-working before they are large enough to run the cultivator through the rows, after which they require but little attention; though, if the soil is at all tenacious and liable to settle close after a rain, it would be of great service to run a subsoil plow each side of the rows as deep as it can be made to enter. At the second handworking, when the plants are well set, if too thick in the row, they may be chopped out with a narrow hoe so that they will stand in the row 4 to 8 inches apart. If not thinned by hand, they will grow several together instead of one; but, as hand-thinning is laborious, this is of no great importance, as they grow very well in this way, though not so large as if they stood singly.

The great difficulty in growing this crop is occasioned by its slow growth at first; at this period, therefore, it requires especial care to prevent the rows from becoming foul, for should the grass or weeds get the start of the crop, it is in a most hopeless condition, hand weeding being the only reme-We have known the weeds kept down by dragging a hand rake along the rows, and if the seed come up well, this is a good plan, as some of the plants will also be destroyed with the weeds, thus making it less laborious to thin with the hoe afterwards. Next to the oval kind before spoken of, we consider the long orange carrot the best for all purposes; indeed, it may be better than that kind, but, from a small experiment made last year, we set a high value upon it. Rich, deep soil, and clean culture, will insure a crop of carrots, amply repaying all cost and labor.

Carrots should not be taken up till late in the fall, as they make considerable growth after the first cold month of the season. They are sometimes plowed out, but if the roots are very long they cannot be got out in this way without much loss. They are easily pulled by hand after throwing the earth from the rows with a two-horse plow. They keep pretty well in the ground, but we do not advise this plan, as they are difficult to get at when wanted through the winter.

They may be gathered and put up into piles of convenient size, and covered with earth or put into a cellar, where they are ready for use at all times. If buried in the earth the tops may be cut off; if kept in a cellar, unless placed in very large piles, the tops may be kept on, as they are relished by stock, and keep pretty well.

Where labor is less of an object than breadth of land, carrots may be planted in rows 12 to 16 inches apart; in some parts of the country this plan is practiced, but we apprehend that in the southwest the most economical plan is that which admits of horse culture.

As a means of giving the young plants a chance to keep ahead of the weeds, the seeds may be sprouted elightly before planting, but this is an operation requiring much care, as they will be injured if the sprouts put out long enough to be broken off in planting. To sprout the seed, pour warm water upon them, which strain off after a few hours; put them into a bag large enough to allow the seed to spread out rather thin, and cover the bag with sods. in a sunny place. As soon as the sprouts begin to show themselves plant the seed.

With proper culture in suitable soil the yield of carrots is enormous. At the late annual meeting of the New York Agricultural Society premiums were awarded for field crops; the premium erop of carrots was 1,600 bushels per acre. The following extract speaks of their value for horses:

following extract speaks of their value for horses:

For two months past I have fed my two horses upon carrots and hay. My horses are in constant service on the road; and under this treatment they usually come out at the end of the "pile" looking better than when they commenced. My dose is two quarts, morning, noon, and at night—four to each horse; they have as much good, sweet English hay as they will eat, and cut, whether fed to them dry or otherwise. This latter I have always practiced since I have had the management of horses; and I am satisfied that it is the cheapest and best way in which it can be given to the horse. There is no waste, and horses eat it better, and have more time to rest, which is quite an important consideration, when the horse is liable to be taken from the stable at any moment. I am satisfied there is no better way of feeding horses, nor is there any cheaper one, at any moment. I am satisfied there is no better way of feeding horses, nor is there any cheaper one, that I have ever tried, than the one mentioned. If there is, will not some person who knows please report? I always cut them quite fine before using. Carrots are most excellent for horses whose wind is in any way affected, such as the heaves, &c. Those who have tried them for this purpose will, I think,

EXPERIMENTS IN MANURING FOR POTATOES, &c.
During the past summer I apportioned a large piece of land with the view of testing the value of piece of land with the view of testing the value of certain hand manures as fertilizers in comparison with stable dung. The following is the result of some of the experiments, which were conducted under my own supervision, and can therefore be relied on as correct:

The manures used were phate of lime, potash, nitrate of potash, nitrate of soda, sulphate of magnesia, and stable dung; all of which were of the best quality that could be procured from town, and consequently the cost of cartage is added, so that the reader may see at a glance the total cost of each, to which I solicit his most at-tentive consideration.

On examining the above table, it will be seen, in plot 1, what the laud did produce without the assistance of manure. All the ground was in that condition previous to experimenting.

Plot 2.—The superphosphate of lime had a tendency to increase the quantity of tubers, but there were more small ones in this plot than in any of the others. The only other advantage in using this nanure is the improvement in the flavor of the po-

In plot 3, the tubers were large and even. The soot was sown broadcast previously to flat-hoeing. The color of the foliage was changed to a beautiful dark green in a few hours after its application; doubtless owing to the annuonia contained in the soot. In all my experiments on the potato I have found soot increase the size and produce. It is a most valuable manure, and ought to be more generally used by the farmer for most of his crops, either by itself as a top-dressing or in a mixture with earth and dung, but the first is much the best way of using the Library and what that the same value of it. I have no doubt that, had the same value of vraic ashes been substituted for the superphosphate, a much heavier crop would have been the result.

a much near ter crop would have been the result.

Plot 4.—An improvement on plot 1.

Plot 5.—The vraic and guano did not produce the result anticipated. The disease commenced early in this plot, and, aided by a dry easterly wind, the foliage was destroyed before their growth was perfected. Other circumstances induce me to think that vraic is a manure too cold and wet for the well-disease in the restate. They did not come up a second doing of the potato. They did not come up so soon as in the other plots, although planted at the same

Plot 6.—These were also longer breaking through the soil, and at the period of taking up were half of them diseased. The remainder were excellent in flavor.

Plot 7.—This crop was splendid in appearance and good in flavor. Very few small or diseased. That quantity of guano did not produce so much foliage as I expected. Possibly, it might be owing to the greater distance allowed from plant to plant, to prevent their being drawn. Indeed, when any soil is heavily manured, the distance of the plants is a point of the utmost importance, particularly with a manure like guano, and to the overlooking of this casential point may often be attributed the failure of a crop. of a crop.
Plots 8 and 9 produced a fine sample.

Plot 10 was remarkably fine and large, with very few small or diseased. The foliage kept healthy to the last. Taking all things into consideration, I have not seen the like this season.

The potatoes manured with sulphate of magnesia and nitrate of soda (about 75 lbs. of each per vergée) were large and extremely white, but watery and very bad flavored. These two manures I should not recommend to be used in the cultivation should not recommend to be used in the cultivation of the potato. The potash and nitrate of potash, tricd in different plots, produced no result worth recording. I was somewhat disappointed in this, as the tuber is a potash plant, the stein and foliage a line plant. However, I intend experimenting with these two manures next season in another way on the same description of crop, and I trust with better success.

Nitrate of Soda on Wheat.-The nitrate of soda had an astonishing effect on the wheat plant, causing a beautiful and luxuriant blade, with large and heavy grain. The change in the color of the plant was perceptible in 24 hours after the application. The quantity used was 50 lbs. per rergee, without any other manure, applied in March. The cost of this manure was 21s per cwt.

Superphosphate of Lime for Root Crops.—Although superphosphate of lime was but of slight service as a manure to the potato, such was not the case when used for the growth of the carrot. I found that 2 cwt. of superphosphate and 2 cwt. of guano per ver-gee produced much finer roots than 1 got from land adjoining manured with 15 tons of the best stable-dung. Turnips also grew large and fine with a dressing of 150 lbs. of superphosphate and 125 lbs. These two manures appear quite congenial to the turnip. It is better, however, to apply a larger quantity of superphosphate than of guano, as the latter has a tendency to produce too much fo-

A piece of land situated near me was, according A piece of land situated near me was, according to my direction (it being in very poor condition) dressed with five cwt. per vergée of superphosphate, and afterwards sown in yellow-bullock turnips. This has produced a crop that, for size and weight, will not be equalled in Jersey.

Mangold-wurtzel, beet, and parsnips, roots of great value to the farmer, will grow considerably larger on land manured with superphosphate and dung, than with a larger quantity of stable-dung alone; and from observations made during this year on the various crops grown in a large market garden with different manures, I am certain that superphosphate of lime, indiciously applied, exercises an im-with different manures, I am certain that superphosphate of lime, judiciously applied, exercises an important influence in the growth of these roots, and will not fail to give a satisfactory return.

How to Apply Artificial Manures.—To those unacquainted with the use of artificial, or, as they are sometimes called, hand-manures, I may say that my experience in them leads me to think the following are the best methods:

agree with me in this; if not, just try the experiment and he satisfied. They are usually cheap, compared with other articles of food of equal nntrisoil, by thin plowing, and a good use of the harrow; and other root crops, well mixed with the surface soil, by thin plowing, and a good use of the harrow; then digged in.

Soot—for Potatoes, sown broadcast at the time of planting, and harrowed in; it assists in darkening the soil and produces an earlier crop.

Superphosphate of Lime—for Turnips or for Wheat, for which it is a valuable manure, should be sown in the soil with the code but where the drill assists in a sill with the code but where the drill assists in a soil with the code but where the drill assists in a sill with the code but where the drill assists in the code but the code in drills with the seed, but where the drill-system is not adopted, it can be sown broadcast as soon as the land is prepared for the seed—for Carrots and other roots it may be used in the same way as guano. It is supposed by some that superphosphate of lime, sown in drills with the seed, gives an impetus to the young plant, that it may grow away from the rava-ges of the black flea (Italica nemorem). In my ex-perience I never found it a sufficient or even a par-tial remedy for the cvil. Several times this sum-mer I had large beds in cabbage and turnip seeds, manured with superphosphate of lime. The quanti-ty of seed used was at the rate of 10 lbs, to the vergee. In consequence of the frequent failures, I used that quantity, thinking to have sufficient left after the black flea; but no, three times I saw the beds destroyed in four hours; therefore, I question if there is any manure that can force vegetation out-doors to outgrow the ravages of this small but powerful pest.

Bonedust—for Turnips, should be harrowed in before the seed—for clover, inch-bones are preferable, plowed in when preparing for wheat. It not done then, bonedust should be substituted and applied any time during winter and well rolled in. For any of the root crops it may be treated in the same way as grapped, but prepringly to so doing it ought to is guano, but previously to so doing it ought to be nade into a compost with earth and well moistened, some months previously to using. Further, any manure having volatile salts should be applied during moist weather; otherwise, a loss of the most valuable part is the consequence. J. LEVESQUE, Jr. ISLAND OF JERSEY, Oct. 21, 1856.
